

SULOCHANA runs in, not knowing quite what to do. In desperation, she looks around for a way to make them both come to their senses. She turns on the tap to fill an empty bucket. The bucket fills slowly with a thin stream of water.

She helplessly looks at them wrestling on the floor, biting each other. She takes the filled bucket, waits for a second, hoping they will realize what she is about to do. When they don't, with a sigh, she pours the whole bucket of water on them. They come to their senses and stare at SULOCHANA for a few seconds. GOVARDHAN lets go of VEDA's arm from his mouth and wrings his kerchief dry. The three look at each other, the situation slowly sinking into their heads.
